

thrix

Quick-Start Guide

Thrix is a powerful AI tool for editors, researchers, and students, that corrects and standardizes references, bibliographies, and in-text citations, to match your required style.

✓ 2. Kazoe, Y.; Kubori, S.; Morikawa, K.; Mawatari, K.; & Kitamori, T. Characterization of pPressure-dDriven wWater fFlows in nNanofluidic eChannels by mMass fFlowmetry. Analytical Sciences, 2022, 38(2), 281-287 (~~2002~~); DOI: 10.2116/analsci.21P198;

An example edited reference, viewed on the Changes tab

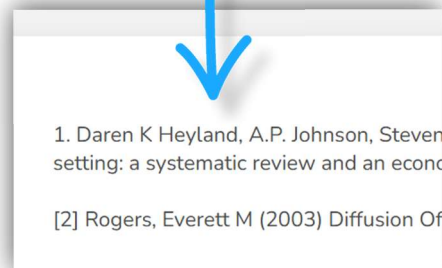

How to process your references

Using Thrix is easy! Just follow these steps:

1

Enter your references.

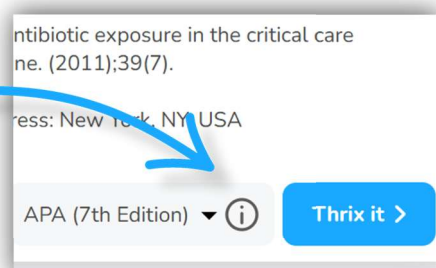

On the start page (at www.thrix.ai), either paste a reference, DOI, or bibliography, or upload a document to edit references and in-text citations.

2

Select a style, then tap Thrix it.

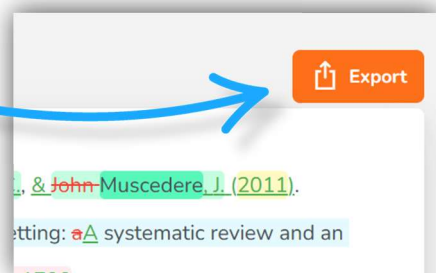

Tip: Get info and examples for each style by clicking ⓘ.

3

Review the changes, then tap Export.

Or, if you uploaded a document, tap Download and review the changes in Microsoft Word or Google Docs.

Reviewing the changes Thrix has made

Thrix edits your text using tracked changes and adds comments where it isn't sure what to do. Thrix is amazing, but because it's automated, it's important that you review the changes it makes and correct any errors. You should read every comment, responding if necessary, and check that you're happy with the changes.

If you pasted your references, Thrix shows the results on 3 tabs: Input, Changes, and Output. The Changes tab is where you'll spend most time reviewing as it shows the tracked changes and comments.

If one or two changes are wrong, tap them and then click  to reject them.

If the whole reference is wrong, you can revert it, then edit manually.

Tip: Whether you pasted or uploaded, don't accept changes as you go – you just need to reject any errors, and then accept everything left at the end in one go!

Finishing your references

In Thrix in your browser:

Tap Export, then choose with changes accepted. This will copy your references to the clipboard so you can paste them into your word processor.

In Microsoft Word:

On the Review tab, tap Accept > Accept All Changes.

In Google Docs:

On the toolbar, tap Tools > Review Suggested Edits > Accept > Accept All

Need more help?

Get more help and FAQs at www.thrix.ai/support.